

Royal Television Society London Convention 2026

Event - Royal Television Society London Convention 2026

Title	Royal Television Society London Convention 2026
When	Tue, 29. September 2026
Where	Kings Place - London, GB
Category	Business & Conference

Description

RTS London Convention 2026: United in Change - If Not Now, When?

The Royal Television Society London Convention 2026 brings together leading figures from television, broadcasting and the wider media industry for a full day of discussion about change, creativity and the future of the sector.

Taking place at Kings Place, London, the programme features conversations, panels and discussions with broadcasters, producers, creatives and industry leaders. Speakers include Graham Norton, Steven Knight CBE, Matt Brittin CBE, Kirsty Young, Nicole Clemens and Kelly Day, alongside senior figures from across UK and international television and media.

Sessions will explore topics including the changing media landscape, the future of television, the evolving role of producers, creativity, audiences, sport and media, and lessons the television industry can learn from other creative sectors.

Accessibility and communication support

For the RTS London Convention, Interpreting Matters is working in collaboration with MyClearText to provide professional communication access throughout the event.

About MyClearText

MyClearText specialises in professional live captioning for face-to-face, virtual and hybrid events, combining specialist technology with human expertise to provide high-quality real-time captions.

The full programme, speaker information and booking details are available from the Royal Television Society.

Event Links

View Event

Venue - Kings Place

Location	Kings Place
Street	90 York Way
Postcode	N1 9AG
City	London
Country	GB
Website	https://www.kingsplace.co.uk/